To our supporters,

We

wanted to share with you results from this past Tuesday's Economic Development Committee Meeting on Street Vending in Los Angeles.

For over two years now, street vendors, the Los Angeles Street Vendor Campaign \(LASVC\)

and other partners have been advocating for an inclusive and sensible policy to accompany the legalization of street vending in Los Angeles. Over the summer, the Chief Legislative Analyst's (CLA) Office hosted community meetings throughout the city. Vendors, campaign partners, community members, stakeholders and small business supporters maintained a strong presence and voiced their opinions on what they wanted policy recommendations to look like. Hundreds of people attended in support of a city-wide permit system that could integrate these entrepreneurs into the fabric of the LA economy.

The Economic Development Committee decided to defer a decision and made a request for more research from the CLA. This issue has been in the legislative process for a total of two years.

We are committed to advocating for a city-wide policy for street vendors. At Tuesday's meeting, the CLA affirmed that a city-wide policy would in fact be the most affordable model, and we believe that this approach would allow for comprehensive management of sidewalk safety, food safety regulations and many other important factors.

Now more than ever, we need consistent support and momentum from everyone to help keep Street Vending at the forefront of the Committee's priorities.

We urge you to stay informed on this issue and to get involved! Check out these articles
